

Bridgeway Academy Introduces Two New Online Learning Platforms

Catasauqua, PA, June 28, 2019 – Bridgeway Academy, a leader in personalized education, extends its customized approach to its online platform. Now, when middle school and high school students enroll in Bridgeway Academy, they'll have three choices for core course delivery.

Previously, the homeschool academy delivered core content through Edgenuity while offering a variety of electives through various content providers. Starting this year, middle and high school students will have the option to access Edgenuity, Odysseyware, or Ignitia content for core courses. Elementary students can still enjoy the interactive proprietary blended learning content they have come to love.

All platforms function similarly; however, the content delivery varies, allowing Bridgeway students the opportunity to engage with content that best fits their needs and learning style. In addition, Ignitia classes are taught with a Biblical worldview, while Edgenuity and Odysseyware are secular. Other differences include the options for foreign language study, course customization, class setup, and schedule of courses.

“We are excited to bring Ignitia and Odysseyware to Bridgeway Academy and round out our course delivery options,” says CEO and President Jessica Parnell. “By having three core course options for our students and their families, we are better able to provide courses that meet their goals, styles, and expectations, setting them up for a successful homeschool year.”

Bridgeway Academy offers homeschooling options for K-12 and is currently enrolling for the next school year. To find out more about the Academy and learn more about Ignitia, Odysseyware, and Edgenuity, visit <http://www.homeschoolacademy.com>.
